DARFUR NOW is a story of hope in the midst of one of humanity's darkest hours – a call to action for people everywhere to end the catastrophe unfolding in Darfur, Sudan. In this documentary, the struggles and achievements of six different individuals from inside Darfur and around the world bring to light the tragedy in Sudan and show how the actions of one person can make a difference to millions.

Written and directed by Ted Braun, who gained unprecedented access to film in the region, the film explores the Darfur conflict through the first-hand experiences of Academy-Award® nominated actor Don Cheadle, Prosecutor for the International Criminal Court at the Hague, Luis Moreno-Ocampo and activist Adam Sterling, among others. Produced by Cathy Schulman, Oscar®-winning producer of "Crash," Mark Jonathan Harris, three-time Academy Award®-winning writer and director of "Into the Arms of Strangers: Stories of the Kindertransport," and Don Cheadle.
